

JULY 2016

my pals.

A few treats for the humans too in the fridge and freezer.

Saved the begonia cuttings as they have rooted despite Mr. Bear's "help" but your garden has been discovered by a hare.

I will miss the paddling, my loon buddies, chats with Judy while we drifted, the view into the tree canopy from bed, and the firefly show.

You have created a magical setting here indoors and out. Thanks for sharing it.

All best,

Eleanor

PS
all beds changed and towels washed.

Dear Janice and John,

THANKS!

seems a rather inadequate word for the past weeks at Frog Hollow.

I do hope I have left things as found although I didn't get to washing the floors. I did vacuum (hardest!) but you will likely be finding traces of Parker for awhile.

And, as I'm very hard on cutting boards, there's a replacement and peanuts for
